

Worksheet 11: What I want

Hooray! Now it is time to start talking about what you really want next in your career. I know you need a job right now. I know you feel you cannot be thinking about what you want, because you just need a job. I must tell you again: the candidates who know clearly what they want (even if it is as simple as commute and chance to learn) jump to the top of the candidate pile every time. Be open. Dream big. We will do a reality check shortly, which will help you identify which of your "wants" you can get right now, and which ones might have to wait.

I want:
